AFTER GRIP WHAT?

The Perilous Period Which Follows an Attack of this Mysterious Malady.

Grip is bad enough with its aching bones, inflamed eyes, paisful back, and fever. But its after effects are perhaps even more to be dreaded than the misery ent on an attack of the dise itself. The person who comes safely through an attack of grip, man, woman, or child, is left in a condition of peculiar debility and prostration from which it is difficult to rally. A slight cold or cough may find speedly termination in lung disease. Ordinary exposure results in pneumonia. The disease seems to deplete the vitality, undermine the strength, and affect the balance of the mind. It is one of the sad experiences of the grip, that the convalescent sup-posed to be rallying well, has been found

As a result of the grip the lungs, and

As a result of the grip the lungs, and other organs of respiration seem peculiarly liable to be affected and consumption may easily be the after consequence of the maiady. It needs no argument therefore to urge the building up of the system weakened by grip to enable it to resist and throw off these sequent diseases which so frequently prove fatal.

In actual test Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has proved itself peca-liarly valuable not only in the quick cure of the disease but also in rebuilding the body which grip has undermined and in curing diseases which are prone to fasten on the enfectled system. It strengthens the stomach, heals the lungs, and puri-fies the blood. It puts the whole body on a plane of sound and vigorous health.

A VICTIM OF GRIP.

in attack of grip which left my throat and lungs in bad condition," writes Mrs. M. B. Stewart, of Center, Chickasaw Nation, Ind. Ter. The doctor said I had disease of the bronchial tubes, but confessed to my husband (un-known to me), that I had consumption in the first stage and could never be cured; but, thanks to God and to Dr.

Pierce, to-day I feel well, and am better

now than I have been for many years

I can do as much work now as any woman of my age, which is forty-seven. One of my neighbor women advised me to get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Dis-covery, so I sent and got it, and then I head, extending to my lungs, and told

"Two years ago this month I had Sage's Catarrh Remedy. I do not regret that I spent the money paid for the med-icines. I have gained twenty-four pounds. Indeed Dr. Pierce's medicines have done wonders for me. It is no use for me to try to tell my feelings. It would take time and space, but I was a skeleton and so poor and so down-hearted I could not look at one of my little ones without shedding tears, thinking that they would soon be left without a mother."

HOW STRENGTH IS RESTORIED.

What makes me strong? Ask yourself that question and you will find that the nswer will be, I am made strong by food. How does food make us strong? By passing through the processes of diges-tion and being converted into nutrition, which, in the form of blood, nourishes the body. So that while blood is the life of the body, food is the life of the blood.

Every red vein and artery of the body leads like a scarlet clue back to the stomach. If the body is weak, therefore, we must look to the stomach first for the cause of weakness, and then to the blood. The same result of physical weakness will follow the opening of an artery, or starvation. You may or starvation. You may bleed to death or starve to death. This is so well understood in medical prac-tice that the first coresid-eration of the physician in investigating disease is the condition of the stom-If the stomach is weak the body can't be strong. If the stomech is weak, that weakness will surely find an echo in some other organ depend-ent on the stomach for its nutrition—such as heart, liver, lungs, kidneys, etc.

breast. If you starve the stomach, you starve the organs it feeds. But starvation of the body can be accomplished even where food is plentifully supplied, because if the stomach and other organi of digestion and nutrition are diseased then the food will not be converted into nutrition or only partly so, and the body inadequately nourished will begin to grow weak. The first attempt, then, in aling with a weak body is to nourish it into strength. The general method of this attempt is to try and bring the food down to the level of the weak stomach. This is done by the use of prepared foods, cod liver oil, and its emuisions. But this doesn't cure the disease of the stomach or put the organs of nutrition into a condition to build up the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery deals directly with the stomach and blood. It seeks to being the stomach up blook. It seeks to bring the stomach up to the level of strong, healthful food, when this is done the body gains in strength, puts on flesh, throws off disease, and enters on a new life. That these results follow the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' is proved by the testimony of thousands of weak, rundown, men and women and by their cure, by the use of 'Discovery,' of diseases of lungs, heart, kidneys, liver, etc., which originated in the disease of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and
